SKELLEY'S STORE WILL REMOVE TO NEW QUARTERS.

Trescher Building Rented Yesterday Through Agency of E. Jeffries and Extensive Improvements Will be Made.

A deal was closed yesterday whereby the Skelley department store will remove from its present location on Sixth street to the Trescher building on Donner avenue. The building has been leased for a term of five years, through the agency of E Jeffries of the Monessen Savings & Trust Company. The room to be occupied by Mr. Skelley is next door to Frantz & Boyd, haberdashers and is centrally located.

In addition to the first floor room, the entire second floor will be utilized as well. Extensive repairs have been planned and will be commenced Monday morning. The present front will be taken out and a central entrance substituted

The store room will be arranged first class in every particular. Mr. Shur, the local manager is planning extensive improvements for the new quarters and when the confusion incidental to moving is over, the Skelley department store will be in keeping with Monessen's progress The store will be removed about October 15

SUFFERED SEVERE STROKE

Dr J P Pryce, one of the most well known physicians in this section is critically ill at his home in Webster, the result of a stroke of paralysis which he suffered about one o'clock this morning Dr Stewart, the attending physician entertains little hope for his recovery.

A Serious Accident.

A serious accident happened in the Daily News printing office day before yesterday While the "devil" was working about the sink he bumped against the towel, which came clattering down on his head with such force that the lad received several severe cuts and abrasions from the sharp edge. The News office towel evidently needs to have the roughness removed with a file or sandpaper

Baked Bean Supper.

Home baked beans will be served together with other good things in the Rogers and Graham building, corner Fourth street and Donner avenue, next Saturday night The price is only 15c Supper will be ready at 5 o'clock Ice cream, cake, sandwiches and coffee may also be ordered separately. AUDIENCE WAS WELL PLEASED

An appreciative audience greeted the Nick Russell Comedy Company at the local opera house last night in "Wife in name only" Every person present showed that the work done by each member of the cast was up to a high standard of excellence May Boden did clever work in the star role and Louse Robinson made quite a hit with the audience But everybody who heard Clifford Hawk the little boy almost went into ecstacies every time he appeared He captivated his audience and did it with the ease and grace of an adult. Many people thought him the best child actor they had ever heard.

Tonight the attraction will be "Poor Mr. Rich" a comedy and all those who like fun should not miss it as it will make you snicker your vest buttons loose and give your liver the best shaking up it has experienced for many a day

Died

Mrs W A Greenlee, a former resident of Monessen, died yesterday at Zollarsville, Washington county, of consumption. She had been ill for some time and had gone to California, Texas and Arizona in turn in hope that the change might benefit her health, but she constantly grew worse. She is survived by a husband The funeral will take place Monday with interment in Bridgeport

Made an Address

The Hon C. L Schuck, editor of the Monessen News was in Irwin today making an address before the Googenheimer De Slavonick society which is celebrating its one hundred and fiftieth anniversary, the subject of his address being "Benefits derived from our American Schools." MURDER TURNED GUN ON SELF AND FIRED FATAL SHOT.

Remorse Drove Settlemayer to Self Destruction. Was Found Dead in his Home in Youngwood.

David H Suttlemeyer who lived on the fair grounds at Youngwood with his wife and family, and who shot his wife's paramour, young John Wilhelm, 17 years old, on the fair grounds there last Monday night, and who has been missing ever since, was found dead in an outhouse at his home on the grounds at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. He was lying in the building in such a position that it is evident that he had shot himself, although at first it was thought by some that he was murdered.

Ever since the shooting of young Wilhelm, a thorough search has been made for him but he was not found until his lifeless body was discovered yesterday morning. It is the opinion of many about Youngwood that he has been about the fair grounds ever since the shooting. If such is the case, however, he must have had an accomplice or two and his hiding place must have been secure, for members of the constabulary and deputies watched the house and not until Thursday night was the guard withdrawn. The dead man is survived by a wife and four children. He was about 40 years old.

Suttlemeyer is a familar name in the local police circles The husband was a flagman on the railroad. Mrs. Suttlemeyer's reputation is not savory. It has been an unusual occurance to see either husband or wife at the squire's office making information against the other.

John Wilhelm, better known as 'Bum' is well liked among the railroaders at Youngwood. He is only seventeen years of age and is one of the youngest brakemen on the road. After the shooting he was taken to the Westmoreland hospital on a special train, which took a posse of officers back to Youngwood to search for the fugitive. He was operated on and his recovery is doubtful

WEBSTER NOTES

John Thomas was in Fayette City and Monessen this morning.

Mrs. W H Henderson of Haydentown is visiting with friends in town.

George Campbell of Swissvale was a business visitor in town yesterday.

Miss Grace Hanlin of McKeesport spent yesterday in town the guest of friends.

Mr. and Mrs Lewis McGee of Uniontown have returned home after visiting in town with friends the past few days

Webster is experiencing considerable difficulty in securing sufficient school marms to run the local education foundry

A local minister denounces the young men for hugging the girls. It does seem a pity that boys should thus allow their muscle to run to waist.

A party of young Webster people witnessed "Wife in Name Only," at the Monessen theatre, last evening. They made the trip in a hay wagon returning about 1 o'clock.

A West Newton negro who boasts of his ability to eat four watermelons of regulation size at a single sitting, says he trusts to the rabbit foot in his pocket to carry him through the deep waters of the aftermath without fatal results.

A Webster man whose smoking supply narrowed down to a box of cigars his wife gave him last Christmas went out and caught cold purposely so that his sense of taste would be so impaired that he could smoke the deadly things without discomfort.

A Webster woman hurled a stone at a hen on her front lawn. The stone struck the sidewalk, bounded through a $25 plate glass in the front door, struck the mirror in the hall rack and shattered it and then caromed off against the baby's head. The hen escaped injury by the way

When you see a small boy coming down the street with a big slice of bread and molasses covering his hand like a patch on the hired man's overalls, and another youngster following along behind, every little while exclaiming, "I ham't mad at you, I ham't," you are carried back to the dreaming days of boyhood at a swifter pace than a Cuban revolution.

Lafayette McMahon Goes Free

After seven days of court trial and five hours of deliberation on the part of the jury, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon a verdict of not guilty was rendered in the case of F Lafayette McMahon, who was tried for the murder of John Sisto.

THE WRONG AND RIGHT.

It is an erroneous idea that so many young men possess that success in this life depends on what one inherits or can obtain through dishonorable methods. The world damns the man who possesses no honor and will resort to roguish tact in order to climb above his fellow traveler. After all the man who wins the faith of friends and is honored by posterity is invariably the man who is willing to reach down and help others to climb the lofty peaks of our earthly existance. So many people strive to get along in the world by trying to destroy the reputation and standing of others in business, socially and morally, which is wrong. If one desires advancement today the best and surest way is through performing with superior industry, perseverance, acquired efficiency, skill and ability, and patiently improving every opportunity in preparing thoroughly for that which legitimate aspirations reach. This is the pathway through which all should travel in order to attain success in life.

When the simplified spelling board gets through reforming all the vulgar nouns and other uncapitalized words will it please pass on to Monessen and take a whack at some of those family names which have caused so much extra squirming of the tongue in order to pronounce them. When it comes to Patronawenoski and all the other Skis we have to deal with, it's high time for a reformation.

A Kentucky mule objected to the odor of gasoline emanating from an automobile and kicked the machine to splinters. Since this incident there has been a kindlier feeling among Kentuckians toward mules.

Sutterville is still objecting to barking dogs, crowing roosters and tooting whistles. In other words she yawns, 'Please go 'way and lemme sleep."

Professional Dignity.

"What wages do you expect?" asked Mrs. Randolph of Aunt Phronie, who had come to hire as cook

"Well, Ah tell you. Ef Ah cooks an' waits on de table, too, Ah 'spects $2 ebery week Ah lives, but ef yo' all has family reach at de table an' Ah jes' hab ter cook, den Ah charges er dollar an' fo' bits."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

This Is Different.

"Love makes the world go round." The world seems to go round, but love makes your head swim. That's the explanation.

How to Be Beautiful.

"What do you do to keep so beautiful?" they asked the butterfly.

"I? I do nothing," she replied.

A deep, genuine sincerity is the first characteristic of all men in any way heroic.—Carlyle.

Weak Kidneys Bright's Disease and Diabetes

Use Dr. Shoop's Restorative to Cure the Cause, If You Suffer From These Symptoms.

Here are the symptoms of Kidney complaints: Urine laden with sediment, brick dust in urine, highly colored urine, greasy froth or blood in it, stringy mucous in urine, unusual desire to urinate, pain in passing water, pain in the back and over the kidneys, hot, dry and itching skin, hair dry and brittle, painful joints, legs feel heavy, sleeplessness, dullness, loss of weight, chilly sensations, loss of memory, general debility, irregular heart, disorders of eyesight, trouble with hearing, waxy skin, fever, shifting from one foot to the other in standing. An improvement is often worse than none. Most Kidney medicines get their effect from remedies called diuretics. These are practically kidney physics, acting as cathartics act on the bowels. They excite the kidneys to unusual action, they cause overstrain. These diuretic remedies are therefore the frequent cause of serious kidney disease. Don't try to doctor the kidneys themselves for you will only harm them. Their only strength is nerve power. Dr Shoop's Restorative (Tablets or Liquid) vitalizes the nerves that operate the Kidneys. A sweet breath adds to the joy of a kiss. You wouldn't want to kiss your wife, mother or sweetheart with a bad breath. You can't have a sweet breath without a healthy stomach. You can't have a healthy stomach without perfect digestion. There is only one remedy that digests what you eat and makes the breath as sweet as a rose—and that remedy is KODOL FOR DYSPEPSIA. It is a relief for sour stomachs, palpitation of the heart, and other ailments arising from disorder of the stomach and disgestion. Take a little Kodol after your meals and see what it will do for you. Sold by R. W. Beck.

If you will make inquiry it will be a a revelation to you how many succumb to kidney or bladder trouble in one form or another. If the patient is not beyond medical aid, Foley's Kidney Cure will cure. It never disappoints.

AN ANGEL ELEPHANT

By GRETCHEN GRAYDON

Copyright, 1906, by E. C. Parcells

"I wonder if you dream how adorable you are in that blue gown," Hetherton said, trying to possess himself of Philomena's hand.

She drew it away, pursed her lips daintily, and flung back at him, "Oh! It's the gown, is it? Thank you for telling me. I shall be sure to wear it the next time the MacCarty comes to see us."

"Confound the MacCarty!" Hetherton ejaculated. "I'd like to break his head for him, the presumptuous oaf. What business has he even to admire you?"

"Mayn't a cat look at a king?" Philomena interrupted demurely, her eyes dancing in the screen of their long lashes.

She had the charm of infinite variety. Some days she was positively ugly, others ravishingly beautiful. This was one of the beautiful days. She knew it, and acted upon the knowledge. She owed Hetherton for several things, chiefly Miss Mannering. He should be paid in full. He had never proposed to her outright, but all along assumed gayly that she would marry him, speaking openly, in a light comedy manner that might mean everything or nothing. She had not resented the light comedy manner, being by no means sure of her own mind.

Still it had been distinctly aggravating to have him run off after the Mannering girl the same as the other men. For two whole days he had kept in the new beauty's train; worse still, he had come back to Philomena not merely repentant, but with the air of one who feels that he has discharged the duty of a proper man.

"A cat may look at a king; the proverb is silent as to queens," Hetherton retorted. "Moreover, you can scarcely stretch it to fit an elephant, which is the MacCarty's animal prototype."

"Now I know how I came to promise him two dances—I adore elephants—always did," Philomena murmured, reflectively, as if aside.

Hetherton caught both her hands and drew her to her feet. "Do you mean to keep the promise?" he asked, his face darkening. She smiled up at him audaciously as she answered:

"Who knows? He may prefer to sit them out. But if he should, you needn't mind, we will take care to keep out of earshot of you and Miss Mannering"—

"Oh! I see," Hetherton laughed, not quite easily, but with a magical lightening of countenance. "I must say that will be handsome of you," he went on; then, his hands slipping up to her shoulders, "Sweetheart, let's run away from everything—the grand ball, the elephant, the Mannering—run away and get married. Listen! It will be so easy; only a spin across country to that dear little stone church we saw last week—we'll take along witnesses—and telegraph for our traps to follow us. 'If 'twere done, when 'twere done then 'twere well 'twere done quickly.' Think how much we shall escape, all the fuss and frills and upsetments of a big wedding. And this is the only way to escape them. I know your aunt has her heart set on St. Thomas', with twelve bridesmaids, and all the rest of it. Say yes, there's a darling. I will live just to keep you from being sorry for it, even one time."

"It sounds enticing," Philomena said, then with a reflective sigh: "But it can't be done. You see if I run off with you, the Mannering would inevitably get the MacCarty and his millions. That's what she is here for, and that's what I'm bound not to let her do."

"Have your joke," Hetherton grumbled, trying to draw her to his breast.

She put him away with gentle dignity, saying: "But it is not a joke. That's why I am so provoked with you; you let yourself be one of her bait gudgeons. Oh, she's a shrewd piece—she knows a man like the MacCarthy means to pick a wife as he has picked a racing stable, from among those other men want very much."

"How do you know?" Hetherton demanded.

Philomena opened her eyes very wide. "Why, he told me so," she said. "You know we are great friends and talk of many things. And he is really vastly entertaining—such a big bulk of raw human nature, with streaks of wit and other streaks of understanding through its honest ignorance."

"H-m! You are somewhat a belle. How many times has he proposed to you?" Hetherton asked.

"Only once, the first day," Philomena said, smiling wickedly. "I asked time for consideration, but he wouldn't give it. He wanted a straight yes or no, but consoled me by telling me that if after awhile he was not engaged he would give me another chance. So I must be sure and make up my mind. I know he is not engaged, not unless Miss Mannering has landed him since morning."

"Is your mind made up?" Hetherton asked teasingly.

Philomena shook her head, but said brightly: "Not yet. Still, there's no telling what may happen between dances."

"Then you refuse—my plan and everything?" Hetherton said, paling visibly.

Philomena shot a glance at him and shivered faintly, but said, with an accent of gentle surprise, "Why, I did that some time ago."

"You will fight the Mannering woman for the MacCarty. You would not even raise a finger for me," Hetherton began bitterly.

Philomena laughed a soft, malicious laugh. "One saves a novice from drowning. A swimmer who knows the waters is apt to regard help as an impertinence," she said.

Hetherton set his teeth. "Goodby," he said, hardly above his breath, holding out his hand. Philomena looked at him doubtfully and asked, "Where are you going?"

"I don't know—to the devil most likely," he answered recklessly.

"Beg pardon, telegram for you, sir," a footman said, coming to the pair with a yellow envelope on his tray.

Hetherton tore it open, glanced at its contents, then stood twisting it between his fingers and smiling an odd, dazed smile. After a long breath he took Philomena in his arms and kissed her, saying in her ear:

"Luck has stood your friend. I'm a beggar, or shall be in two hours more. That was a call for margins I can no more put up than I can fly. I've been speculating wildly. I wanted you so badly I thought I must offer you millions no less than myself. Until today they seemed in my grasp. That was why I dared. But I'm losing everything at once."

"Not quite," she said, clinging to him, her eyes shining up at him through a mist of tears. "You may have me, if you lose everything else. I'm not afraid of poverty if I may have love."

"Seems like it's time I took a hand in this game," a throaty voice said behind them, and there stood the MacCarty, very red, and all over perspiration. He had been ambushed all the while in the summer house outside which the lovers stood. "You folks think list'nin' ain't the right thing," he went on. "No more it ain't, but I waked from a nap as you were in the midst o' talkin', and it didn't take ten words to show me the lay o' the land. I like the lay of it. The little lady thar," nodding toward Philomena, "has got me doped out fine and pat, but she didn't make sport of the old galoot. She said it in sport, but she has looked out fer me. And more'n that, she's made me understand thar was at least one woman money couldn't buy. You ain't half good enough fer her," this to Hetherton with a chuckle. "But since it appears she likes the looks o' ye, be hanged if you're a-goin' to take her and try love in a cottage. At least, not onless the cottage's got all the fixin's. No need to tell me how you stand. I ain't quite out o' the market if I am up here in the mountains, courtin' and rusticatin'. If you need margins, I know the reason why. Go right straight to the telephone. I'll be along o' ye; together we'll get the straight o' things down to a dot over my private wire. I'm goin' to see you through if it takes one million or even two. But when you are through you git married and keep out of sech messes."

"I will," Hetherton said, holding out his hand.

Before the MacCarty could take it Philomena flung herself between them, threw her arms about his thick neck and kissed him on both cheeks. "You're an angel elephant," she murmured. "I shall love you always, no matter what he says," with a nod toward Hetherton.

"He says, 'Amendment accepted,'" Hetherton said, wringing the MacCarty's hand.

That gentleman laughed apologetically, but returned the grip heartily, and said as he puffed away with Hetherton at his elbow:

"It takes jest an angel elephant to skeer the bulls and bears good and hard."

Women of Ancient Rome.

"We are assured by Seneca," says the historian Inge, "that there were women in ancient Rome who counted their ages not by their years, but by the husbands they had had. Juvenal tells of one woman who had married eight husbands in five years. Divorce was granted on the slightest pretext. Many separated merely from love of change, disdaining to give any reason, like Æmilius Paulus, who told his friends that 'he knew best where his shoes pinched him.' Rich wives were not much sought after by wise men. Their complete emancipation made them difficult to manage. Accordingly, since both rich and poor wives were objectionable, the large majority of men never married at all. In most cases a Roman bridegroom knew practically nothing of his wife's character until after marriage. Marriage for the Roman woman meant a transition from rigid seclusion to almost unbounded liberty. She appeared as a matter of course at her husband's table whether he had company or not. She could go where she liked, either to the temples of Isis and Serapis or to the circus and amphitheater. She had her own troops of slaves, over whom she ruled without interference."

Tolstoi and the Bear.

When Count Tolstoi was a young man he took part in a bear hunt that nearly ended fatally. When the beast charged him Tolstoi fired and missed. He fired a second shot, which hit the bear's jaw and lodged between his teeth. Tolstoi was knocked down, falling with his face in the snow. "There," he thought, "all is over with me." He drew his head as far as possible between his shoulders, exposing chiefly his thick fur cap to the beast's mouth till she was able to tear with her upper teeth only the cheek under the left eye and with the lower teeth the skin of the left part of the forehead. At this moment the famous bear hunt leader Ostashkof ran up with a small switch in his hand and cried out his usual: "Where are you getting to? Where are you getting to?" This, says Tolstoi, sent the bear scuttling off at her utmost speed.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
To find relief and cure?
No reason why any reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. Almira A. Jackson, of East Front St., Traverse City, Mich., says: "For twenty years I was doctoring for kidney and liver trouble, but without benefit. Just before I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was almost paralyzed. I could hardly stand on my feet because of the numbness and lack of circulation. Had a knife been thrust into my kidneys the pain could not have been more intense. My sleep was disturbed by visions of distorted figures. The kidney secretions were annoyingly irregular, and I was tortured with thirst and always bloated. I used seven boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. The bloating subsided until I weighed 100 pounds less, could sleep like a child and was relieved of the pain and the irregularity of the kidney action. My circulation is good and I feel better in every way."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Jackson will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50 cents per box.

"Oriented" Orientals.

Knowledge of direction seems to be instinctive with the Burmans, says the author of "A People at School." They always reckon by the needle, not by relative position. They do not say "Turn to the right," but "Turn to the west." If a table in a room has two tumblers on it, one of them will be the east tumbler, the other the west, and the table itself will be not the "table near the window," but the "table in the east of the room." So they speak of the north or south side of a street or of a tree, not the shady or sunny side. Even in rain or mist they know the direction at once. An English traveler, walking in the Burman forest on a foggy morning to find all trace of the road wiped out by rain and every apparent means of ascertaining direction gone, was at a loss what to do, but his Burman servants knew at once. "That is north," they said, pointing, "and that is east. Our course lies between," and straight to the northeast they marched unerringly.

Helgoland Soup.

What do the Helgolanders do with their birds? Some are sent away to the Hamburg market and the rest kept for home consumption. Roasting before a slow fire, with the tail on, over toast, is practically an unknown art or at least one rarely practiced. Everything goes into the pot for soup. "Trosselsoup" is an institution much lauded. Mr. Gatke tells us how it should be prepared. Take care to commit forty or fifty thrushes, according to the requirements of the family, to the soup pot, and do not have the fattest birds drawn, and if the cook is a true artist no one will fail to ask a second helping. A favorite Helgoland dish is kittiwake pie. In November and December these gulls are very fat and when prepared in Helgolandish fashion are considered a delicacy, although a somewhat fishy one. The gray crow is also a very favorite dish.—Chambers' Journal.

Beggars Who Take the "Cure."

Begging seems to be a lucrative calling in Vienna. In one of the district police courts a man and his wife were summoned to appear on a charge of begging in the streets. Only the woman appeared, and in answer to the magistrate's questions stated that her husband had gone to Baden to take a cure! The prosecuting attorney remarked that the Viennese beggars earned such good incomes and lived so well that they were forced to go to some bath resort to recover from their high living. Only a few days ago, he said, a beggar well known in the Vienna police courts had returned from Carlsbad after taking the cure there and had resumed his begging with renewed vigor.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Pawnshop Sales.

"Don't imagine," says an auctioneer, "that you can get any real bargains at a pawnshop sale. The pawnbroker knows just what people think about his stock, many of them having learned from experience that he will pay next to nothing on the best quality of jewelry and silverware, watches, etc., and they thus get it into their heads that all the articles sold at auction are genuine goods. But there's where they make a big mistake. The pawnbroker seldom sells any pledged articles at these auction sales. He uses them simply for a 'blind.' Articles taken in pawn are invariably sold at private sale."—New York American.

A Glimpse of Carlyle.

One day Carlyle suddenly stopped at a street crossing and, stooping, picked up something out of the mud, even at the risk of being knocked down and run over by passing vehicles. With his bare hands he gently rubbed the mud from it. He then took it to the pavement and laid it down on a clean spot on the curbstone. "That," said the old man in a tone of tenderness he rarely used, "is only a crust of bread. Yet I was taught by my mother never to waste anything—above all, bread, more precious than gold. I am sure that the little sparrows or a hungry dog will get nourishment from this bit of bread."

Rheumatism is not incurable. Sufferers? Yes! But Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy if faithfully used drives it out of the system. Its the blood that's at fault. Poisonous crystals like sand get into the joints and muscles. Dr Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy prevents this. It drives Rheumatism from the blood and then Rheumatism dies. We recommend and sell it. For sale by all druggists.

Think of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure if your nose and throat discharges—if your breath is foul or feverish. It contains Oil of Eucalptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., incorporated into an imported, creamlike petrolatum. It soothes, heals, purifies, controls. Call at our store for free trial box. Sold by all druggists.

If all dyspepsia sufferers knew what Dr Shoop's Restorative would do for them, Dyspepsia would practically be a disease of the past. Dr Shoop's Restorative reaches so much trouble by its direct tone action upon the inside nerves—the true stomach nerves.
